Harbin Orthopaedic Surgeon, Dr. Kenneth Sands, is Cambridge Who's Who

Kenneth C. Sands, M.D., Harbin Clinic Orthopaedic Surgeon, has been named "Cambridge Who's Who Professional of the Year in Orthopaedic Surgery."

The Cambridge Who's Who selection committee chooses special honorees based on their professional accomplishments, academic achievements and leadership abilities.

Cambridge Who's Who is an exclusive membership organization that recognizes and empowers executives, professionals and entrepreneurs throughout the world. From healthcare to law, engineering to finance, manufacturing to education, every major industry is represented by its 300,000 active members.

Dr. Sands, who joined Harbin Clinic Orthopaedics in 2006, excels in full and partial joint replacement, complex revision replacement surgery and hip resurfacing. Dr Sands was the first surgeon to perform the Birmingham Hip Resurfacing in the state of Georgia, and was one of an initial 50 surgeons to perform the surgery in the United States. Eager to share his knowledge with his fellow physicians, Dr. Sands travels frequently to lecture about hip resurfacing.

Dr. Sands is noted for leading the effort to develop the Center for Joint Replacement Surgery at Floyd Medical Center. Under Dr. Sands' leadership as medical director, the Joint Replacement department was designated a National Center of Excellence for Total Joint Replacement. To date, the Floyd Medical Center of Excellence for Total Joint Replacement is only one of two centers in the state of Georgia to hold that distinction.

Prior to joining the Harbin Clinic, Dr. Sands was a staff surgeon for the U.S. Army. He notes that a desire to assist patients of all ages prompted him to become involved in orthopaedics, and considers having the ability to help people regain mobility to be the most gratifying aspect of his career.

Dr. Sands earned an MD from Tulane University School of Medicine and received a Bachelor of Science in Zoology from Duke University. He completed a residency at the State University of New York in Brooklyn and a fellowship in Orthopedic Joint Replacement at the Florida Orthopaedic Institute. His professional affiliations include the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, the American Medical Association and the Georgia Orthopaedic Society.

His office, Harbin Clinic Orthopaedics, is located at the Physician Center, 330 Turner McCall Blvd., Suite 2000, Rome. Visit www.harbinclinc.com for more information or call his office at 706.236.6362. Harbin Clinic is Georgia's largest privately owned multi-specialty physician group
